Kelly is known for her forensic analysis of evidence, persuasive written submissions and ability to manage large litigation and arbitrations.

Since coming to the Bar, Kelly has predominantly appeared on matters listed for more than 10 sitting days. Most recently, Kelly was led on an international arbitration under the ICC Rules of Arbitration heard over 15 sitting days and including some 30,000 documents.

In 2016, Kelly appeared, unled, on Citigold Corporation Limited v. Chief Executive, Department of Environment and Heritage Protection (No 5) [2016] QLC 62 which was heard over 21 sitting days and she achieved a very favourable outcome for her client.

Kelly has appeared as Counsel in the Supreme Court, Land Court, District Court and Federal Court of Australia. She is an accomplished presenter and regularly presents at national and state conferences.

Kelly is a nationally accredited mediator and is on the editorial panel of the LexisNexis Australian Alternative Dispute Resolution Bulletin. She holds a statutory appointment as a General Referee on the Queensland Government Building and Development Dispute Resolution Committee.

Kelly is a past President of the Women Lawyers Association of Queensland, a past Chair of the Maritime Law Association of Australia and New Zealand (Qld Chapter), and current committee member of Australian Mining and Petroleum Law Association.

Holding a Masters of Law in International Trade (Maritime), Kelly has a particular interest in marine insurance, maritime transport, international trade, arbitration, continental seabed and the law of the sea.

On a personal note, Kelly is actively involved in the Brisbane Zonta Club who advocate for the interests of women and children both domestically and internationally.
